

ng ambitions

to look forward to any more."

And finally, Livio said, he wanted to learn jazz piano.

When you have ambition like our next Coast character, your list has to have some pizzazz.

Successful young businesswoman Amber Werchon might still be in her 20s, but the ambitious mother-to-be can think of plenty for her bucket list.

A close encounter with gorillas in Uganda is top most on her list.

While on the topic of adventures, Amber listed walking the Inca Trail, cruising the Nile and spending three months drifting between the Greek Islands as her dream holidays.

"Every time you take a holiday, especially abroad, you broaden your horizons and expand your point of view," Amber said.

"There's still so many places I'd love to visit, including many places in Australia."

The three people atop her list of those she wants to meet would make for an entertaining dinner party.

Amber said she wanted to meditate with the Dalai Lama, chit-chat with billionaire Richard Branson and ask Barack Obama how he balanced his work and home life.

"As far as a leader goes, I think he has incredible presence and charisma and is an inspiring leader," she said.

Finally, before she kicks the bucket, Amber wants to put pen to paper and have a book published.

The topic: whatever happens next.

"I just want to tell my story, talk about my journey," she said.

No doubt things will get a lot more interesting once motherhood hits.

TREKKING AHEAD: Amber Werchon would like a close encounter with gorillas in Uganda and to walk the Inca Trail.

